Utmost Simplicity Marks Last Rites Over Man Who Finds In Death What He Sought In Life

LAST WISHES CARRIED OUT TO LETTER

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

Washington, Feb. 6.—On the heights of Mount St. Alban, commanding the scenes of his greatest triumphs and his profoundest tragedies, reverent hands laid to rest today Woodrow Wilson, America's great war President, whose spoken word once decided the fate of empires and changed the history of a turbulent world.

Within sight of his final resting place towers the monument that a grateful nation erected to Washington, the founder; the jewel-like memorial to Lincoln, the emancipator; and further on the modest little tomb that marks the eternal sleep of the unknown soldier—a trinity of memories that shall be forever hallowed in history.

For Woodrow Wilson there was no last sad march down historic Pennsylvania Avenue, no clattering military, no muffled drums and a rattle of bands, no pomp of power and of display, no pageantry of a nation's sorrow. In life he had participated in more of these memorable marches down the avenue than ordinarily falls to the lot of Presidents, and in death he sought only the peace and quietude that comes when the soul falls asleep.

There was not even an eulogy of him at his last rites. He had no funeral. In life he was eulogized and criticized as have been but few of his predecessors, and in death it was his wish that the eulogies paid him on this final day be spoken only softly in the heart of his countrymen.

In life it had been peace he sought—he put five million men under arms and sent them into war seeking it—and in death at last he found it.

To that earthly door through which his war-worn body was borne this afternoon was marked "the way to peace."

The words were chanted in the cold stone—a reminder that death brings sometimes what life has refused. The little chapel wherein his spirit was consigned to time's keeping was appropriately Bethlehem Chapel. On its walls and windows were depicted the life story of the Prince of Peace, all mankind's long struggle for attainment.

Never was a great American so buried so simply. Present here about his last rites the last February afternoon were only those his family wished. There was none of that mad scrambling and unbridled hunting for points of vantage that have marked solemn occasions in the past. There were friends of a lifetime there, his college classmates, his children, his intimates, without regard to rank or station in life. There was one who had served him well in however humble the capacity, and finally there were the President of the United States and a select few of the government officials, which he so long presided. The presence of these latter was the only reminder at the tomb itself of the high place Woodrow Wilson held.

But not even the wishes of the dead could quite remove from the final scenes the evidences that an event momentous in the world's history was being written down.

Outside the great, half-finished cathedral which is to be his final resting place stood thousands of people—some voluntarily to stand and shift restlessly in the sharp cold and demonstrate that no ordinary mortal was here being buried.

To these thousands outside came clearly the simple scriptural quotations and prayers which constituted the final services. The words were wafted out of the little chapel by radio to the waiting multitude, and far off were caught up and broadcast to countless others. The whole world listened as Woodrow Wilson went to his final resting place and yet its presence was unfelt in the dimly lit chapel.

Three miles from the cathedral the wheels of government, slowed down since Sunday, stopped altogether. And even the business and commerce of a great city ceased as the caquet was lowered to its resting place. Street cars halted in mid-block, taxicabs and autos ground to a stop and clocks suspended at 3:30 as the chiming of Epiphany pealed forth their sorrowful message that Woodrow Wilson was being lowered to his grave.

The only reminder in the chapel of the world-wide sorrow at his passing and of the regard in which he was held, was the myriad mass of flowers. They made the air heavy with their fragrance.

The wreaths of kings were there, the offerings of rulers everywhere and mixed indiscriminately with them were the solitary blossoms and the simple sprays that expressed the reverence of mothers and little children.

The simple services began in the library of the home in S street, where the former President spent most of his waking hours since his retirement from the White House three years ago.

In its small confines were gathered only members of the immediate family, led by Mrs. Wilson and his daughters; the President and Mrs. Coolidge, Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft, and the honorary pall bearers, drawn from among the closest intimates of the former President.

There beside the black casket, decorated only with an American flag, made of red, white and blue flowers, the still air of the room was broken at 8 o'clock by the voice of the Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, intoning the Twenty-third Psalm:

"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters."

Then a prayer by the Rev. Sylvester Beach. He had been the Wilson pastor for many years at Princeton. He officiated at the burial of the first Mrs. Wilson ten years ago. He married the McAdams. Dr. Beach's voice quivered there before his friend, the faint smile which he did still on his upturned face.

There followed scriptural readings by Bishop James A. Freeman, an old time friend. He read from Deuteronomy 33:27, and Judith, 24:25:

"The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms; and He shall thrust out the enemy from before thee, and shall say destroy them—"

"Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy—"

"To the only wise God our Saviour be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and forever. Amen."

There was a rustle among the sorrowing group, and then came a group of service men, their breasts glittering with the medals won in the same war that shattered the man before them; eight soldiers, eight sailors, and eight marines. Tenderly they hoisted the heavy burden of their comrade to their stalwart shoulders, and with measured step carried the casket out of the familiar library and down the broad central staircase to the black private hearse waiting.

The restless murmur of the great crowd that packed the sidewalk opposite the red brick house was still as their burden was slid gently into the hearse. Here and there a woman could be heard sobbing. Handkerchiefs were everywhere, and men uncovered.

Motors purred up to the door and the black cloaked wail and members of the family disappeared into them.

Silently then, the short journey to the cathedral was begun.

Through S street the sorrowful procession passed, and thence into the broad expanse of Massachusetts avenue to the entrance to the Cathedral grounds. Both sides of the avenue were thronged with people—men bareheaded, women with handkerchiefs to their eyes, and here and there a child throwing flowers into the street.

Two companies of soldiers and two of marines reinforced the regular police in keeping the route open and free of the multitude.

The ride from the house to the cathedral was of brief duration.

There a way had been cleared for the sorrowful procession.

The black hearse drew swiftly up to the door, the service men again took up their burden and preceded by Bishop Freeman and followed by those who had come from the house they passed through the doorway marked "the way of peace" and down the broad central aisle of the little chapel.

There was a sudden hush over the six hundred people, gathered there as Bishop Freeman began reciting:

"I am the resurrection and the life: saith the Lord; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die—"

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord—"

The burden was put down by the little door that marks the entrance to the crypt. The reading continued.

Then a choir broke softly:

"Day is dying in the west—"

and followed the Apostles Creed, in which the congregation joined.

Psalm 90 was then read by Bishop Freeman:

"Lord, thou has been our dwelling place in all generations—"

The Lord's prayer, and a prayer given and the mournful tolling of bells, symbolizing the nation's sorrows, then the inspiring strains of the re-

MACDONALD FAVORS GERMANY AND RUSS ENTRY INTO LEAGUE

(Copyright 1924 by International News Service and The Manchester, England, Daily Dispatch.)

London, Feb. 6.—Admission of Germany and Russia to the League of Nations was advised today by Premier Ramsay MacDonald in an exclusive interview.

"Ours is not a business man's government but I claim it is a business government," declared the Labor premier as he paced up and down in front of a blazing grate fire in the foreign office.

The interview took place at a morning hour when many Londoners had not even breakfasted.

"We will not sit by and watch events. We want the League of Nations to become a living force but before this can be done Germany and Russia must be admitted. There will be difficulty in the case of Russia, but Germany's inclusion must be insisted upon. The most realistic full and complete recognition an equal terms as a member of the League."

The premier was questioned about the newspaper accusation that recognition of Russia was only "paper recognition." He replied with vigor: "It is absolute. There is nothing to quibble about. We have given Russia our formal recognition, but the fact of diplomatic recognition does not prevent countries from having disputes and differences. For instance, we might have a quarrel with some European power and yet not withdraw our diplomatic representation."

Asked if he expected France to oppose admission of Germany to the League of Nations, Premier MacDonald replied:

"No. I believe Germany will be accepted as a member of the League and no difficulty will be encountered that cannot be overcome."

Premier MacDonald feels elated over the cordial reception given to the British labor government by France. "We felt a change of tone at once," explained the Premier. "Our past governments hesitated and assumed negative attitudes. That was mainly responsible for misunderstandings with France. All that is gone. Great Britain no longer will be content to sit by and watch events, waiting for results. The outcome of this new attitude seems to be succeeding beyond our expectations. The French have definitely withdrawn their support from the separatist movement in the German Rhineland. The French high commissioner in the Rhineland no longer requires registered decisions from the separatist administration in the Palatinate."

MacDonald laughter heartily when asked about the dismal prophecies that were made as the labor party came into power. One was that securities of all kinds would decline and capital would be removed from the nation.

On the contrary, it is learned from financial circles, confidence in the labor government has restored the price of securities and their prices are ascending. Business is looking forward to a period of stability and prosperity.

The country can rest assured that the laborites are really going to do all in their power to solve home and foreign problems which stand in the way of economic recovery.

MacDonald signified the closing of the simple service.

"The strife is o'er, the battle done. The victory of life is won; The song of triumph is begun— Alleluia!"

The casket was lowered gently into the waiting crypt. The audience sat quietly until Mrs. Wilson and the immediate mourners and the President and Mrs. Coolidge had left the chapel, and then silently moved out as the door to the crypt softly closed.

DEMOCRATS RESENT COOLIDGE IGNORING RECOMMENDATIONS ON LEASE LAWYERS

By BENNETT CLARK

Washington, Feb. 6.—Despite the cessation of official activities because of the funeral of ex-President Woodrow Wilson, the Senate's oil investigation gained increased momentum today that may lead to new explosions involving additional high federal officials in the naval reserve leasing scandal.

Ever since the announcement by the White House of appointment of Silas H. Strawn and Alexander Pomerene as special counsel to prosecute the oil leases, a fight of intensive proportions has been smoldering in the Senate over the selections. Open warfare is expected the moment the President forwards the names to the Capitol for confirmation by the upper chamber, possibly tomorrow or late this week.

Opposition to Strawn and Pomerene is not confined to partisan lines, certain factions of both the Republican and Democratic ranks being prepared to join in the conflict.

Strawn's appointment is known to have incurred the ill-feeling of the so-called invigilant Republican group because of his alleged connection with "big business." Senator LaFollette, Republican of Wisconsin, leader of the group, and his lieutenant, Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, are said to be ready to head the onslaught at least to the extent of bitter verbal attacks.

In high Democratic ranks there was no concealing of resentment at the choice of Pomerene, especially with the manner of his selection by the White House. This faction charged that President Coolidge did not call in minority chiefs to suggest names for the Democratic counsel, but that after the selection was made, Senators Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, leader and Walsh, Democrat of Montana, chief assailant of the lease, were summoned to the White House for consultation.

Democrats feel they have been "slighted" by the President, when the proper thing to have done was to have picked the counsel from a list of names advanced by Robinson and Walsh.

It is known that Pomerene's name was not on the list Walsh presented after the appointment had been determined upon.

Insurgents have a further score against Pomerene in that he voted for the Esch-Cummins railroad law. Whether the opposition will block confirmation or even delay it is conjectural. Despite the antagonism there is a feeling that the appointments should be approved speedily so that injunction suits to prevent E. L. Donney and Harry F. Sinclair from further extracting oil from the reserves may be sought expeditiously.

Operations are continuing unchecked at present in Elk Hills and Teapot Dome.

As a further incentive to confirmation, it was learned at the White House that President Coolidge has ordered that injunction proceedings be filed as soon as possible after senatorial approval of the appointments. The counsel are said to have already prepared the necessary preliminary steps.

During the lull following the death of Mr. Wilson, committee members have been more than ordinarily busy in developing new leads in the investigation. These have to do chiefly with alleged stock deals connecting senators, representatives and other high governmental officials.

Walsh has spent many hours closed at home working secretly on new evidence, the exact nature of which he does not wish to reveal until he springs it as a surprise at committee hearings.

He has been much concerned with the reports of the stock transactions and already has issued subpoenas for a host of brokers and bank officials.

Woodrow Wilson, the great war time President, will be laid to his last long rest.

Twice every hour, wherever the uniform of his country is worn, the death-throated roar of the guns spoke their tribute today to the passing of him who in the heyday of his illustrious career had loomed a million such gains in the cause of right.

WH Play Cards To Get Jack's Tooth Fixed And Glasses For Little Mary

The date of the card party to be held under the auspices of the Public Health Nursing Service at Thayer's Auditorium, is changed from Monday the 11th to Saturday the 9th of February. This change is made because of conflicting entertainments on Monday night.

Probably only those in close touch with our Red Cross Nursing Service know of the frequent need which arises among children for glasses or dental work—sometimes for both—where parents are financially unable to pay for them. Sometimes they can pay part of the amount necessary in which case they are encouraged to do so. But it is here that the Red Cross steps in and where it is judged necessary, defrays part or all of the expense of assisting these children. It is a work of mercy and relief that can only be estimated in its results in future years.

The money used for this purpose is raised as a separate fund from Red Cross monies and is applied only for purposes as above stated—the collection of defects. Two years ago about $100 was raised for it by a series of card parties. That amount has for some time been exhausted. Needy cases are confronting the Red Cross Nurses, and we are taking this means for providing for this charitable work.

Come to the Card party at Thayer's Auditorium Saturday night. Enjoy a game of Auction Bridge or Five Hundred, and feel that you are doing a worth while thing in helping a worthy cause.

PADLOCK LAW TO BE INVOKED IN THE PITTSBURGH REGION

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 6. (INS.)—Convicted violators of the prohibition law in Western Pennsylvania today were facing the alternative of dismantling their bars, swinging doors, and all the other appurtenances of their saloons and hotels or having their establishments "closed by padlock."

The drastic orders came from Lewis Graham, deputy attorney general, and Major William B. Wright, personal agent of Governor Pinchot.

First action in the "padlock" campaign was in Etna, milltown suburb of Pittsburgh, where five saloons have been notified to remove every semblance or suggestion of a bar. The owners were recently arrested by state troopers on liquor charges.

Greensburg and Butler barracks of the state constabulary have been instructed by Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, to enforce the padlock orders in their districts.

Tom Chapman, of Munson, had business at the Court House today.

PATRIOTIC TAXI MEN PLANTED A HALF MASTED FLAG ON LAWN OF GERMAN EMBASSY EARLY THIS MORNING

The flag on the embassy was placed at half staff at 12:30 p. m. today for the first time since Wilson died.

Washington, Feb. 6 (INS.)—Refusal of the German Government to put its embassy flag at half staff in honor of Woodrow Wilson resulted in a demonstration in front of the Embassy building early today and the calling out of police reserves.

Just before dawn nearly 150 taxi drivers, including many ex-service men, assembled at the German embassy, 1485 Massachusetts avenue, and planted a pole in the front lawn, with an American flag at half mast.

Ambassador Otto Wiedfeldt and his staff first became aware of the demonstration when a pistol shot fired by some one in the crowd awakened them.

Peering from the front windows, they saw the crowd milling around in the avenue, and immediately telephoned for the police.

When the reserves arrived in patrol wagons and automobiles, the assembly of taxi drivers began singing the German national anthem.

A foreign office official declared: "No instructions were sent to the German Embassy not to lower the flag in memory of former President Wilson that was a matter left entirely to the discretion of Otto Wiedfeldt."

Berlin, Feb. 6 (INS.)—The German Government has not sent any instructions to the German Embassy at Washington, regarding the flag, it was officially announced this afternoon.

No instructions were sent to the German Embassy not to lower the flag in memory of former President Wilson that was a matter left entirely to the discretion of Otto Wiedfeldt.

Plans For Retaining Of Identity Of Road Built By The People

Lawrence Township, Feb. 6.

Editor Progress:—Last week I met where Lawrence and Graham township people organized for the purpose of asking the County Commissioners and State Highway Dept. meet for a stretch of improved road extending from Moore Creek to the Graham Road. If secured this road would take up all of Lawrence township's share of road money, while both the upper and the lower end of the township could remain in the mud.

We don't believe this to right and will give herewith some straight facts while asking that the lower end or river road be given a square deal when it comes to dividing the road money.

The February Grand Jury is rapidly completing its inquiry into the criminal cases on the list for this term of court. The criminal list will likely be completed today and after an inspection of the public buildings is made the question of the necessity for a bridge over Anderson Creek in Curwensville borough, at county expense will be passed upon.

Edward Donovan, of Clearfield, is foreman of the Grand Jury.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

The policemen all stood at attention, and when the singing was over, ordered the taxi drivers to disperse. They did so, leaving the flag, which was later removed by the police. No arrests were made.

"We intended no harm to the embassy or its officials," one of the taxi men said. "We only wanted to show them how to properly honor a citizen of the United States."

Announcement was made at the Embassy this morning that the flag would be half masted at 2:30 p. m. when all government departments closed in accordance with the executive order of President Coolidge.

ODDS AND ENDS
AND THINGS

By J. H. C.

Over in Allegheny, Jefferson county, where the principal staples of the community are "drunk men and fat cattle," and where the natives taboo the telephone, electric light, organ in the church and other contraptions of the devil, the people not only live the simple life, but sometimes leave their "yellow dips" long enough to act simple. Supt. Ponce of the Penn Public Service Company is working his head off to complete the power and light lines through that section while good weather prevails and to meet the growing demands for juice in the field they are about ready to supply. Last Sunday he had a crew of 17 men at work erecting a very important line but a bunch of "holier than thou" fellows got their heads together and invoking the ancient blue laws of the vintage of 1797 put a stop to the operation. The Punksy Spirit gives the following version of the affair:—

"At the instigation of members of the Methodist Church of Ringgold, 17 employees of the Penn Public Service Company were arrested Sunday at Ringgold for working on the Sabbath. Day in violation of the old, outworn, antediluvian Blue Laws of Pennsylvania. The 17 men were fined $10 each. They paid it, hoping the company would re-inburse them. Several prominent Ringgold and Spenningville residents were among those arrested. There were 22 men at work erecting poles. They were all warned to stop their activities by noon or be arrested. Five of them heeded the warning and stopped work. The other 17 took a chance. What the outcome will be is not known."

WOODROW WILSON

History alone can tell whether Woodrow Wilson was the figure he appeared in the eyes of his enemies or the superhero he loomed in the eyes of his friends; whether he was merely stubborn and self-opinionated, or whether he was animated by a vision so far ahead of the time that his impatience with inability of the average man in political life to keep up with was but a minor detail in the effort to make real for all a far-viewed ideal of democracy and peace.

On these matters, no man living is fitted to speak with authority. But as to the fact that America has lost a great mind, a man who loved his country supremely, and who was martyred war as definitely as any soldier on the European battlefield, these need be no two opinions.

The death of Wilson at this time is a merciful thing. His body, shattered by carrying too long the terrible overburden of war, was but a bit of "broken machinery", ready to be laid down. Those who hated Wilson and those who loved him, those who agreed with him and those who mistrusted him unite in wishing Godspeed to his spirit, undergirding the Great Release.

THE TAX RECKONING

Federal taxes, it is clear, are going to be reduced. How about state and municipal taxes? They constitute most of the burden which, as a certain chamber of commerce observes, means more than six weeks' work done by the average citizen merely to pay his share of the cost of government.

There is little indication, in most communities, of state and city councils and county commissioners taking the tax situation as seriously as Congress has been induced to do it. Neither is there much indication of responsibility felt by the average taxpayer for his own share of inflating public expenditures and thereby inflating his own taxes. Plans for extension of public enterprises are going ahead, in dozens of cities and hundreds of cities, just as if it cost nothing to pay for them.

The worst of it is that so many communities are still engaged in the perilous proceeding of mortgaging their own future to pay for costly improvements which they would never undertake on a cash basis. Some of those improvements, too, are temporary. City after city is being bonded for things that will have to be done over again before the present bonds are paid. Some cities are even bonding themselves to pay current expenses. For all this, there will be a reckoning. The best time to begin reckoning is now, no matter how painful the reckoning is.

"LISTEN TO ME"

La Comte and Fleisher's smart musical success, "Listen To Me," will be the attraction at the Driggs Theatre on Friday evening of this week.

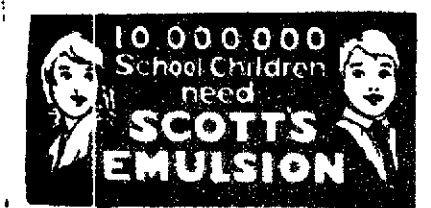

It is a modern extravaganza, possessing music, dancing, comedy, light comedies and pretty girls, gorgeously mounted and takes one from New York City, through Madras to the North Pole, back through Candyland, to the stage of the Ritz Theatre, New York to Cape Cod in fairyland.

Written by Charles George, author of "M. C. Don't" and "Go Easy," it possesses every attribute to please: beautiful and gay, with a singing dancing chorus of dainty and fast of great excellence and theatricality can look forward to evening of joy.

Progress Editorial For Women

CHEATING THE CHEATER

By FLORENCE DAVIES

Perhaps, as some people believe, there is an appointed moment for each of us, when the human soul has finished its journey. Perhaps, on the other hand, the human will has some subtle hold on our uncertain destinies. Of that we shall never quite know.

But this I do know, that as far as human understanding can judge, there are men and women in the world today who are here only because they have been too busy to go elsewhere.

There is one woman with a very serious heart trouble who has actually managed to make a tremendous physical adjustment to that leaking heart (doctors know this can be done) simply by keeping on keeping on. Her physicians and even she herself have a slight suspicion that once she lets go her hold on her work, she will down never to get up. How much of that is true and how much mere illusion probably the doctors themselves do not know. But there is a sixth sense which tells us things not in medical books, and that sixth sense tells us that this woman kept herself alive by sheer preoccupation with the work that was laid upon her to do.

There is the story of Palm Beach, that wonder land of beauty which rivals the most exotic, the most picturesque, the most brilliant of the resorts in the world, and which has been transformed in a few years time from a mere colony of hotels in a beautiful setting to this fairy land of palaces, largely through the agency of a man who went down there to die. This gentleman who was about to compose himself for his last breath was Addison Mizner, the architect.

It seems that before he got around to letting go of life, he met a man who wanted to build a clubhouse for wounded army officers of the great war. That club house was so beautiful that orders began to pour in for private villas, and, possibly annoyed at this postponement of his date with death, Mr. Mizner rolled up his sleeves and went to work. Today fully finished its journey. Perhaps, on the other hand, the human will has some subtle hold on our uncertain destinies. Of that we shall never quite know.

Pleas For Retaining of Identity of Road

In Lawrence township was this old "river road." The work was done by the pioneer settlers along the river from Clearfield to Lick Run, where the Ooshen line connects.

Lawrence township was very large before it was divided and sparsely settled south and west of Clearfield, making it burdensome on the people mentioned to keep their road in condition. Not alone by reason of the mud but because of the spring floods which filled the road from Moose Creek down to Wolf Run. When this occurred it was necessary to go and cut and pound the ice to pieces and roll it into the river in order to get the road open to Clearfield.

There was no money in the township treasury for that kind of work and the farmers and their sons would volunteer and meeting at Wolf Run take up their task as often as an ice flood occurred.

A start would be made by putting back the Wolf Run bridge, which was always crowded off its pier by the ice. The volunteers who performed this public duty time after time, some from Girard, Covington and Karthaus, were: William Mapes and sons, James Road and sons, Judge Samuel Clyde,

Matthew Road, David Miller, Wm. T. McCorkle, Alex. Road, Thompson Road, Joseph Jordan and sons, John Irwin, Henry Irwin and sons, James Irwin and sons, Henry Mead and sons.

Then, too, the following old-timers who all signed the petition and were instrumental in having the first mail route between Clearfield and Karthaus established over this road: Ellis Irwin, Lick Run; Ferdinand Hurkthal, Lewis Irwin, Alexander Murray, A. B. Shaw, then at Shawville; William Murray, M. LeConte, LeConte's Mills; Anderson Murray and sons, Girard; and Francis Coudriet, at Frenchville; Larry Flood, Keewaydin; Dr. Potter at Karthaus. Surely, the work of these old timers should not be forgotten by abandoning this road, associated as it is with the early history of this region.

Grandfather Samuel Fulton, one of the pioneer settlers and the first surveyor in the county, located along this road and raised a family of four sons, James, Moses, Washington and Thom. All of whom settled on farms near Wolf Run. These men were all citizens and not only looked after this road but took an active interest in church, school and public affairs of the township. They lived and died on the farms they carved out of the wilderness, one of their descendants, George Fulton, yet living on the old homestead farm, while T. N. Fulton resides in Clearfield. They know and can tell you something about the upkeep of this road, these people now want to abandon.

They helped upbuild the entire community, their deeds in the past deserve to be remembered by continuing and improving this road. We of the Wolf Run end of Lawrence have no objections to an equal division of the money for road purposes; this year. If Krebs, Goheen, David Irwin and the rest of the downriver section are satisfied also with but their share, let the good work go on. We all voted for the good road bond issue and will be ready and willing to do it again if we get our share of the road money for the purpose of improving this historic old pioneer road down the river.

Yours for fair play,
AN OLD TIMER.

LAST WISHES CARRIED OUT TO LETTER

Washington, Feb. 6.—On the heights of Mount St. Alban, commanding the scenes of his greatest triumphs and his profoundest tragedies, reverent hands laid to rest today Woodrow Wilson, America's great war President, whose spoken word once decided the fate of empires and changed the history of a turbulent world.

Within sight of his final resting place towers the monument that a grateful nation erected to Washington, the founder; the jewel-like memorial to Lincoln, the emancipator; and further on the modest little tomb that marks the eternal sleep of the unknown soldier—a trinity of memories that shall be forever hallowed in history.

For Woodrow Wilson there was no last sad march down historic Pennsylvania Avenue, no clattering military, no muffled drums and a rattle of bands, no pomp of power and of display, no pageantry of a nation's sorrow. In life he had participated in more of these memorable marches down the avenue than ordinarily falls to the lot of Presidents, and in death he sought only the peace and quietude that comes when the soul falls asleep.

There was not even an eulogy of him at his bier. He had not wished it. In life he was eulogized and criticized as have been but few of his predecessors, and in death it was his wish that the eulogies paid him on this final day be spoken only softly in the heart of his countrymen.

In life it had been peace he sought—he put five million men under arms and sent them into war seeking it—and in death at last he found it.

To that earthly door through which his war-worn body was borne this afternoon was marked "the way to peace."

The words were chanted in the cold stone—a reminder that death brings sometimes what life has refused. The little chapel wherein his spirit was consigned to time's keeping was appropriately Bethlehem Chapel. On its walls and windows were depicted the life story of the Prince of Peace, all mankind's long struggle for attainment.

Never was a great American so buried so simply. Present here about his bier this bleak February afternoon were only those his family wished. There was none of that mad scrambling and unbridled hunting for points of vantage that have marked solemn occasions in the past. There were friends of a lifetime there, his college classmates, his children, his intimates, without regard to rank or station in life. There was one who had served him well in however humble the capacity, and finally there were the President of the United States and a select few of the government officials, which he so long presided. The presence of these latter was the only reminder at the tomb itself of the high place Woodrow Wilson held.

But not even the wishes of the dead could quite remove from the final scenes the evidences that an event momentous in the world's history was being written down.

Outside the great, half-finished cathedral which is to be his final resting place stood thousands of people—some voluntarily to stand and shift

restlessly in the sharp cold and demonstrate that no ordinary mortal was here being buried.

To these thousands outside came clearly the simple scriptural quotations and prayers which constituted the final services. The words were wafted out of the little chapel by radio to the waiting multitude, and far off were caught up and broadcast to countless others. The whole world listened as Woodrow Wilson went to his final resting place and yet its presence was unfelt in the dimly lit chapel.

Three miles from the cathedral the wheels of government, slowed down since Sunday, stopped altogether. And even the business and commerce of a great city ceased as the caquet was lowered to its resting place. Street cars halted in mid-block, taxicabs and autos ground to a stop and clocks suspended at 3:30 as the chimes of Epiphany pealed forth their sorrowful message that Woodrow Wilson was being lowered to his grave.

The only reminder in the chapel of the world-wide sorrow at his passing and of the regard in which he was held, was the myriad mass of flowers. They made the air heavy with their fragrance.

The wreaths of kings were there, the offerings of rulers everywhere and mixed indiscriminately with them were the solitary blossoms and the simple sprays that expressed the reverence of mothers and little children.

The simple services began in the library of the home in S street, where the former President spent most of his waking hours since his retirement from the White House three years ago.

In its small confines were gathered only members of the immediate family, led by Mrs. Wilson and his daughters; the President and Mrs. Coolidge, Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft, and the honorary pall bearers, drawn from among the closest intimates of the former President.

There beside the black casket, decorated only with an American flag, made of red, white and blue flowers, the still air of the room was broken at 8 o'clock by the voice of the Rev. James H. Taylor, pastor of the Central Presbyterian Church, intoning the Twenty-third Psalm:

"The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want."

"He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters."

Then a prayer by the Rev. Sylvester Beach. He had been the Wilson pastor for many years at Princeton. He officiated at the burial of the first Mrs. Wilson ten years ago. He married the McAdoo's. Dr. Beach's voice quivered there before his friend, the faint smile with which he died still on his upturned face.

There followed scriptural readings by Bishop James A. Freeman, an old time friend. He read from Deuteronomy 33:27, and Judith, 24:25:

"The eternal God is thy refuge, and underneath are the everlasting arms; and He shall thrust out the enemy from before thee, and shall say destroy them—"

"Now unto Him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of His glory with exceeding joy—"

"To the only wise God our Saviour be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and forever. Amen."

There was a rustle among the sorrowing group, and then came a group of service men, their breasts glittering with the medals won in the same war that shattered the man before them; eight soldiers, eight sailors, and eight marines. Tenderly they hoisted the heavy burden of their comrade to their stalwart shoulders, and with measured step carried the casket out of the familiar library and down the broad central staircase to the black private hearse waiting.

The restless murmur of the great

ON DOOR

Jacqueline and Persytha were placed on the entrance to the Wilson home late in the afternoon of the day of the former president's death.

crowd that packed the sidewalk opposite the red brick house was still as their burden was slid gently into the hearse. Here and there a woman could be heard sobbing. Handkerchiefs were everywhere, and men uncovered.

Motors purred up to the door and the black cloaked wail and members of the family disappeared into them.

Silently then, the short journey to the cathedral was begun.

Through S street the sorrowful procession passed, and thence into the broad expanse of Massachusetts avenue to the entrance to the Cathedral grounds. Both sides of the avenue were thronged with people—men bareheaded, women with handkerchiefs to their eyes, and here and there a child throwing flowers into the street.

Two companies of soldiers and two of marines reinforced the regular police in keeping the route open and free of the multitude.

The ride from the house to the cathedral was of brief duration.

There a way had been cleared for the sorrowful procession.

The black hearse drew swiftly up to the door, the service men again took up their burden and preceded by Bishop Freeman and followed by those who had come from the house they passed through the doorway marked "the way of peace" and down the broad central aisle of the little chapel.

There was a sudden hush over the six hundred people, gathered there as Bishop Freeman began reciting:

"I am the resurrection and the life; saith the Lord; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die—"

"We brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out. The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord—"

The burden was put down by the little door that marks the entrance to the crypt. The reading continued.

Then a choir broke softly:

"Day is dying in the west—" and followed the Apostles Creed, in which the congregation joined.

Psalm 90 was then read by Bishop Freeman:

"Lord, thou has been our dwelling place in all generations—"

MACDONALD FAVORS GERMANY AND RUSS ENTRY INTO LEAGUE

(Copyright 1924 by International News Service and The Manchester, England, Daily Dispatch.)

London, Feb. 6.—Admission of Germany and Russia to the League of Nations was advised today by Premier Ramsay MacDonald in an exclusive interview.

"Ours is not a business man's government but I claim it is a business government," declared the Labor Premier as he paced up and down in front of a blazing grate fire in the foreign office.

The interview took place at a morning hour when many Londoners had not even breakfasted.

MacDonald continued:

"We will not sit by and watch events. We want the League of Nations to become a living force but before this can be done Germany and Russia must be admitted. There will be difficulty in the case of Russia, but Germany's inclusion must be insisted upon. The most realistic full and complete recognition an equal terms as a member of the League."

The premier was questioned about the newspaper accusation that recognition of Russia was only "paper recognition." He replied with vigor: "It is absolute. There is nothing to quibble about. We have given Russia our formal recognition, but the fact of diplomatic recognition does not prevent countries from having disputes and differences. For instance, we might have a quarrel with some European power and yet not withdraw our diplomatic representation."

Asked if he expected France to oppose admission of Germany to the League of Nations, Premier MacDonald replied:

"No. I believe Germany will be accepted as a member of the League and no difficulty will be encountered that cannot be overcome."

Premier MacDonald feels elated over the cordial reception given to the British labor government by France.

"We felt a change of tone at once," explained the Premier. "Our past governments hesitated and assumed negative attitudes. That was mainly responsible for misunderstandings with France. All that is gone. Great Britain no longer will be content to sit by and watch events, waiting for results. The outcome of this new attitude seems to be succeeding beyond our expectations. The French have definitely withdrawn their support from the separatist movement in the German Rhineland. The French high commissioner in the Rhineland no longer requires registered decisions from the separatist administration in the Palatinate."

MacDonald laughter heartily when asked about the dismal prophecies that were made as the labor party came into power. One was that securities of all kinds would decline and capital would be removed from the nation.

On the contrary, it is learned from financial circles, confidence in the labor government has restored the price of securities and their prices are ascending. Business is looking forward to a period of stability and prosperity.

The country can rest assured that the laborites are really going to do all in their power to solve home and foreign problems which stand in the way of economic recovery.

MacDonald signified the closing of the simple service.

"The strife is o'er, the battle done. The victory of life is won; The song of triumph is begun—"

"Alleluia!"

The casket was lowered gently into the waiting crypt. The audience sat quietly until Mrs. Wilson and the immediate mourners and the President and Mrs. Coolidge had left the chapel, and then silently moved out as the door to the crypt softly closed.

"In the great Cathedral leave him, God accepts him; Christ receives him."

DEMOCRATS RESENT COOLIDGE IGNORING RECOMMENDATIONS ON LEASE LAWYERS

BY BENNETT CLARK

Washington, Feb. 6.—Despite the cessation of official activities because of the funeral of ex-President Woodrow Wilson, the Senate's oil investigation gained increased momentum today that may lead to new explosions involving additional high federal officials in the naval reserve leasing scandal.

Ever since the announcement by the White House of appointment of Silas H. Strawn and Alexander Pomerene as special counsel to prosecute the oil leases, a fight of intensive proportions has been smoldering in the Senate over the selections. Open warfare is expected the moment the President forwards the names to the Capitol for confirmation by the upper chamber, possibly tomorrow or late this week.

Opposition to Strawn and Pomerene is not confined to partisan lines, certain factions of both the Republican and Democratic ranks being prepared to join in the conflict.

Strawn's appointment is known to have incurred the ill-feeling of the so-called invigilant Republican group because of his alleged connection with "big business." Senator LaFollette, Republican of Wisconsin, leader of the group, and his lieutenant, Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, are said to be ready to head the onslaught at least to the extent of bitter verbal attacks.

In high Democratic ranks there was no concealing of resentment at the choice of Pomerene, especially with the manner of his selection by the White House. This faction charged that President Coolidge did not call in minority chiefs to suggest names for the Democratic counsel, but that after the selection was made, Senators Robinson, Democrat, Arkansas, leader and Walsh, Democrat of Montana, chief assailant of the lease, were summoned to the White House for consultation.

Democrats feel they have been "slighted" by the President, when the proper thing to have done was to have picked the counsel from a list of names advanced by Robinson and Walsh.

It is known that Pomerene's name was not on the list Walsh presented after the appointment had been determined upon.

Insurgents have a further score against Pomerene in that he voted for the Esch-Cummins railroad law. Whether the opposition will block confirmation or even delay it is conjectural. Despite the antagonism there is a feeling that the appointments should be approved speedily so that injunction suits to prevent E. L. Donney and Harry F. Sinclair from further extracting oil from the reserves may be sought expeditiously.

Operations are continuing unchecked at present in Elk Hills and Teapot Dome.

As a further incentive to confirmation, it was learned at the White House that President Coolidge has ordered that injunction proceedings be filed as soon as possible after senatorial approval of the appointments. The counsel are said to have already prepared the necessary preliminary steps.

During the lull following the death of Mr. Wilson, committee members have been more than ordinarily busy in developing new leads in the investigation. These have to do chiefly with alleged stock deals connecting senators, representatives and other high governmental officials.

Walsh has spent many hours closed at home working secretly on new evidence, the exact nature of which he does not wish to reveal until he springs it as a surprise at committee hearings.

He has been much concerned with the reports of the stock transactions and already has issued subpoenas for a host of brokers and bank officials.

Woodrow Wilson, the great war time President, will be laid to his last long rest.

Twice every hour, wherever the uniform of his country is worn, the deep-throated roar of the guns spoke their tribute today to the passing of him who in the heyday of his illustrious career had loosed a million such guns in the cause of right.

WH Play Cards To Get Jack's Tooth Fixed And Glasses For Little Mary

The date of the card party to be held under the auspices of the Public Health Nursing Service at Thayer's Auditorium, is changed from Monday the 11th to Saturday the 9th of February. This change is made because of conflicting entertainments on Monday night.

Probably only those in close touch with our Red Cross Nursing Service know of the frequent need which arises among children for glasses or dental work—sometimes for both—where parents are financially unable to pay for them. Sometimes they can pay part of the amount necessary in which case they are encouraged to do so. But it is here that the Red Cross steps in and where it is judged necessary, defrays part or all of the expense of assisting these children. It is a work of mercy and relief that can only be estimated in its results in future years.

The money used for this purpose is raised as a separate fund from Red Cross monies and is applied only for purposes as above stated—the collection of defects. Two years ago about $100 was raised for it by a series of card parties. That amount has for some time been exhausted. Needy cases are confronting the Red Cross Nurses, and we are taking this means for providing for this charitable work.

Come to the Card party at Thayer's Auditorium Saturday night. Enjoy a game of Auction Bridge or Five Hundred, and feel that you are doing a worth while thing in helping a worthy cause.

PADLOCK LAW TO BE INVOKED IN THE PITTSBURGH REGION

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 6. (INS.)—Convicted violators of the prohibition law in Western Pennsylvania today were facing the alternative of dismantling their bars, swinging doors, and all the other appurtenances of their saloons and hotels or having their establishments "closed by padlock."

The drastic orders came from Lewis Graham, deputy attorney general, and Major William B. Wright, personal agent of Governor Pinchot.

First action in the "padlock campaign" was in Etna, milltown suburb of Pittsburgh, where five saloons have been notified to remove every semblance or suggestion of a bar. The owners were recently arrested by state troopers on liquor charges.

Greensburg and Butler barracks of the state constabulary have been instructed by Major Lynn G. Adams, superintendent of state police, to enforce the padlock orders in their districts.

Tom Chapman, of Munson, had business at the Court House today.

Plans For Retaining Of Identity Of Road Built By The Pioneers

Lawrence Township, Feb. 6.

Editor Progress:—Last week I attended where Lawrence and Gibson township people organized for the purpose of asking the County Commissioners and State Highway Dept. meet for a stretch of improved road extending from Moore Creek to the Gibson Road. If secured this road would take up all of Lawrence township's share of road money, while both the upper and the lower end of the township could remain in the mud.

We don't believe this to right and will give herewith some straight, honest facts while asking that the lower end or river road be given a square deal when it comes to dividing the road money.

Edward Donovan, of Clearfield, is foreman of the Grand Jury.

PATRIOTIC TAXI MEN PLANTED A HALF MASTED FLAG ON LAWN OF GERMAN EMBASSY EARLY THIS MORNING

The flag on the embassy was placed at half staff at 12:30 p. m. today for the first time since Wilson died.

Washington, Feb. 6 (INS.)—Refusal of the German Government to put its embassy flag at half staff in honor of Woodrow Wilson resulted in a demonstration in front of the Embassy building early today and the calling out of police reserves.

Just before dawn nearly 150 taxi drivers, including many ex-service men, assembled at the German embassy, 1485 Massachusetts avenue, and planted a pole in the front lawn, with an American flag at half mast.

Ambassador Otto Wiedfeldt and his staff first became aware of the demonstration when a pistol shot fired by some one in the crowd awakened them.

Peering from the front windows, they saw the crowd milling around in the avenue, and immediately telephoned for the police.

When the reserves arrived in patrol wagons and automobiles, the assembly of taxi drivers began singfield the German Anthem.

A foreign office official declared: "No instructions were sent to the German Embassy not to lower the flag in memory of former President Wilson that was a matter left entirely to the discretion of Otto Wiedfeldt."

Berlin, Feb. 6 (INS.)—The German Government has not sent any instructions to the German Embassy at Washington, regarding the flag, it was officially announced this afternoon.

ODDS AND ENDS
AND THINGS

By J. H. C.

Over in Ringgold, Jefferson county, where the principal staples of the community are "drum men and fat cattle," and where the natives taboo the telephone, electric light, organ in the church and other contraptions of the devil, the people not only live the simple life, but sometimes leave their "yellow dips" long enough to act simple. Supt. Ponce of the Penn Public Service Company is working his head off to complete the power and light lines through that section while good weather prevails and to meet the growing demands for juice in the field they are about ready to supply. Last Sunday he had a crew of 17 men at work erecting a very important line but a bunch of "holier than thou" fellows got their heads together and invoking the ancient blue laws of the vintage of 1797 put a stop to the operation. The Punksy Spirit gives the following version of the affair:—

"At the instigation of members of the Methodist Church of Ringgold, 17 employees of the Penn Public Service Company were arrested Sunday at Ringgold for working on the Sabbath. Day in violation of the old, outworn, antediluvian Blue Laws of Pennsylvania. The 17 men were fined $10 each. They paid it, hoping the company would re-inburse them. Several prominent Ringgold and Spennerville residents were among those arrested. There were 22 men at work erecting poles. They were all warned to stop their activities by noon or be arrested. Five of them heeded the warning and stopped work. The other 17 took a chance. What the outcome will be is not known."

WOODROW WILSON

History alone can tell whether Woodrow Wilson was the figure he appeared in the eyes of his enemies or the superhero he loomed in the eyes of his friends; whether he was merely stubborn and self-opinionated, or whether he was animated by a vision so far ahead of the time that his impatience with inability of the average man in political life to keep up with was but a minor detail in the effort to make real for all a far-viewed ideal of democracy and peace.

On these matters, no man living is fitted to speak with authority. But as to the fact that America has lost a great mind, a man who loved his country supremely, and who was martyred war as definitely as any soldier on the European battlefield, these need be no two opinions.

The death of Wilson at this time is a merciful thing. His body, shattered by carrying too long the terrible overburden of war, was but a bit of "broken machinery", ready to be laid down. Those who hated Wilson and those who loved him, those who agreed with him and those who mistrusted him unite in wishing Godspeed to his spirit, undergirding the Great Release.

THE TAX RECKONING

Federal taxes, it is clear, are going to be reduced. How about state and municipal taxes? They constitute most of the burden which, as a certain chamber of commerce observes, means more than six weeks' work done by the average citizen merely to pay his share of the cost of government.

There is little indication, in most communities, of state and city councils and county commissioners taking the tax situation as seriously as Congress has been induced to do it. Neither is there much indication of responsibility felt by the average taxpayer for his own share of inflating public expenditures and thereby inflating his own taxes. Plans for extension of public enterprises are going ahead, in dozens of cities and hundreds of cities, just as if it cost nothing to pay for them.

The worst of it is that so many communities are still engaged in the perilous proceeding of mortgaging their own future to pay for costly improvements which they would never undertake on a cash basis. Some of those improvements, too, are temporary. City after city is being bonded for things that will have to be done over again before the present bonds are paid. Some cities are even bonding themselves to pay current expenses. For all this, there will be a reckoning. The best time to begin reckoning is now, no matter how painful the reckoning is.

"LISTEN TO ME"

La Comte and Fleisher's smart musical success, "Listen To Me," will be the attraction at the Driggs Theatre on Friday evening of this week.

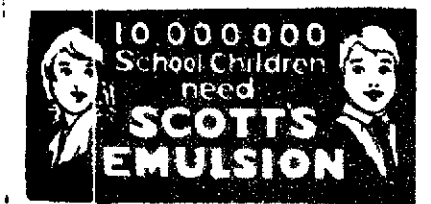

It is a modern extravaganza, possessing music, dancing, comedy, light novels and pretty girls, gorgeously mounted and takes one from New York City, through Madras to the North Pole, back through Candyland, to the stage of the Ritz Theatre, New York to Cape Point in fairyland.

Written by Charles George, author of "M. C. Don't" and "Go Easy," it possesses every attribute to please: beautiful and gay, with a singing dancing chorus of dainty and past of great excellence and theatricality can look forward to evening of joy.

CHEATING THE CHEATER

By FLORENCE DAVIES

Perhaps, as some people believe, there is an appointed moment for each of us, when the human soul has finished its journey. Perhaps, on the other hand, the human will has some subtle hold on our uncertain destinies. Of that we shall never quite know.

But this I do know, that as far as human understanding can judge, there are men and women in the world today who are here only because they have been too busy to go elsewhere.

There is one woman with a very serious heart trouble who has actually managed to make a tremendous physical adjustment to that leaking heart (doctors know this can be done) simply by keeping on keeping on. Her physicians and even she herself have a slight suspicion that once she lets go her hold on her work, she will down never to get up. How much of that is true and how much mere illusion probably the doctors themselves do not know. But there is a sixth sense which tells us things not in medical books, and that sixth sense tells us that this woman kept herself alive by sheer preoccupation with the work that was laid upon her to do.

There is the story of Palm Beach, that wonder land of beauty which rivals the most exotic, the most picturesque, the most brilliant of the resorts in the world, and which has been transformed in a few years time from a mere colony of hotels in a beautiful setting to this fairy land of palaces, largely through the agency of a man who went down there to die. This gentleman who was about to compose himself for his last breath was Addison Mizner, the architect.

It seems that before he got around to letting go of life, he met a man who wanted to build a clubhouse for wounded army officers of the great war. That club house was so beautiful that orders began to pour in for private villas, and, possibly annoyed at this postponement of his date with death, Mr. Mizner rolled up his sleeves and went to work. Today fully finished its journey. Perhaps, on the other hand, the human will has some subtle hold on our uncertain destinies. Of that we shall never quite know.

In the Courts

In the case of Johnston v. Lixfield, which was tried before Judge Chase in civil court yesterday the jury returned a verdict in favor of Johnston to the amount of $329.74.

The case of Mabel Frasier and her father George Frasier, vs. Richard Hickman was placed on trial at the conclusion of the Johnston-Lixfield suit. The parties to this suit are from DuBois, the litigation growing out of an accident which occurred on the street of DuBois last August. The Frasier girl was riding a bicycle which came into collision with Hickman's automobile. Miss Frasier was quite severely injured as a result of the wreck and was forced to spend seventy-two days in the hospital and is yet lame from the effects of her injuries.

The plaintiff alleges that Hickman was to blame for the accident, while the defense seeks to prove that the Frasier girl was a novice on the bicycle and that in turning out for the car she ran into a car parked along the street, fell off her bicycle under the wheels of Hickman's car.

The attorneys interested are McCull and Arnold for the plaintiff and Gleason for the defense.

Thomas Reklaitis, the DuBois boot legger who was sentenced Saturday last to pay $500 fine and serve ten months in jail, wants his freedom again.

As was the case when given four months by Judge Bill last May, Reklaitis by his attorney, Liveright & Chase, this morning in application for his release, is on the ground that the prisoner is suffering from his disease and it would be injurious to his health to make him serve out his term. The application is accompanied by an affidavit from Dr. Harry C. Fulton, of DuBois, setting forth the alleged facts as noted above. A hearing will be heard on the application after Jail Physician Dr. A. D. Cowdrey has made a thorough and careful examination of Reklaitis' "pump."

Suit was entered in Prothonotary Ralston's office this morning by Hon. W. I. Swopes on behalf of S. A. Maxwell & Co., who seek to recover $235.50 from W. C. Green, which they allege is due for merchandise.

Don't Neglect a Cold

Authors, don't let colds get under way at the first cough or sniffle rub Musterole on the throat and chest.

Musterole is a pure, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. It draws out congestion, relieves soreness, does all the work of the good old fashioned mustard plaster in a gentler way, without the blister.

Keep a jar handy for all emergencies. It may prevent pneumonia in your home. To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole. 25¢ in jars in tubes, hospital size, $1.

NATION HALTS

The guns and the bells and the flags that flew at half mast everywhere marked the chief outward expression of the country's grief, and even these honors were unsought by him whose last wish had been that he would be buried as a private citizen of the country to which he had rendered such notable service.

The peace that was denied to Woodrow Wilson in his turbulent life came to him today in death. Peace is carved in the stone over the doorway to the little chapel where final services were held for him late this afternoon; the message of peace is portrayed in story and picture in the wood and stone of the chapel; and peace was further symbolized by the unarmed service men who carry him to his crypt.

Body Lay in Library

While the crowds of reverential mourners gathered this morning in the little hilly street outside his modest home, the body of the former President was removed from the bed on which he died and borne to the small library where he spent most of his waking hours since his retirement from the White House.

In this small library whose walls are festooned with mementoes of his greatness, there was held this afternoon the briefest and simplest of services. The services consumed scarcely more than a few minutes—A Psalm, a prayer and the reading of some extracts from a devotional book which he was wont to read daily—and that is all.

Then his body will be borne down the long stairway and into a hearse for the short trip to the heights of Mount St. Alban, where there will be another and similar brief service. Only the immediately family, a few old time friends, and the President of the United States was present at the services at the house. At the cathedral services there will be there—Representatives of the various arms of the government over which he so long presided, but even there only a comparative few of the hosts that mourn for Woodrow Wilson.

Outside the cathedral, however, there will be thousands gathered to pay their last respects to Mr. Wilson. To these will be brought the prayers and the scriptural readings within by means of radio. And even those unable to gain nearness to the scene will have the services brought to them by means of broadcasting, thus for the first time in history enabling countless thousands to participate in the final obsequies of a former President.

The National Capitol itself will render to Mr. Wilson all the tribute possible. At 3:30 p. m. when his body is lowered into the crypt tolling bells will carry the message and all business throughout the city will cease for two minutes. Street cars and motors will halt their traffic, pedestrians will uncover in the streets, clerks in stores will adjourn their labors, and the whole city will stand still in his memory.

The Government departments will discharge their thousands of workers at 12:30 p. m. that they may participate in the capital ceremonies.

For Woodrow Wilson there will be no march down Pennsylvania avenue with the flood of memories that such a march would bring, no clatter of military no muffled drums and draped colors, no black caisson and dirgeful bands.

He did not wish it and so he will be buried this afternoon as has been no other president of the United States in history as a private citizen for whom there should be no ostentatious show of sorrow or display of pomp.

And as he was a breaker of precedents in life so will he be in death. He will be buried this afternoon within the boundaries of the District of Columbia, the only one of his office to find a final resting place within sight of the familiar scenes of his life's greatest work.

HEALTH and beauty go hand in hand. Where the system is run down—the face drawn and haggard—the body limp and lifeless—beauty is missing. Loss of ruddy supplant those that might have been gazes of admiration.

Restore your health and beauty will take care of itself. S. S. S.—the rich blood builder—rekindles the spark of health and lights the blaze of beauty by building red blood cells. The nerve power of your system finds life in these very blood cells. Build more red blood cells and your nerve power will increase. S. S. S. builds them. Rich blood will tingle through your system. That lost charm will return. Your entire system will be repaired. You will be ready to cope with the impurities and blemishes that handicap beauty.

As physical health means beauty so, too, does S. S. S. mean beauty. For S. S. S. means systems that are free from impurities—pimples, blackheads, acne, boils, eczema, rheumatism. S. S. S. and good health go hand in hand. S. S. S. is made of pure vegetable ingredients. It is sold at all good drug stores. The large size bottle is more economical.

DAINTY VALENTINES

It is a question whether we have ever shown such a beautiful and charming array of valentines as we are showing this year. The patterns are daintier than they ever have been and the variety is so much greater.

We have such a wide showing of styles, too. There are the little ones for the kiddies and then there are the great large ones for grown-ups who still believe in the sentiment of the feast of St. Valentine.

And another feature is a box for the children—a box which contains the "makings" of valentines, and the kiddies may have the pleasure of making their own.

ZIMMERMAN-EVANS

James Zimmerman, of Hyde and Miss Mildred Evans, of Clearfield, were married at the West Side Methodist parsonage last evening by the pastor, Rev. W. L. Armstrong. The groom is one of Hyde City's best known young men. His bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Evans of Walnut street. She was a valued employee of the Clearfield Progress for the past couple of years and is well qualified for her new station in life.

A most enjoyable wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride last evening, at which time a merry party of friends and relatives of the newlyweds gathered to celebrate the happy occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. Zimmerman will reside in Clearfield.

ALL WORN OUT?

Are you tired all the time, worn out night and day? Does your back ache as if it would break? Do you suffer dizziness, headache, rheumatic twinges or distressing urinary disorders? You have good cause, then, to be alarmed about your kidneys. Do as many of your town-folks recommend. Use Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. This Clearfield case is convincing.

Mrs. M. M. Bruner, 112 W. Third Ave., says: "My kidneys got out of order and acted too frequently. There was a dull, bearing down pain in my back which was worse when I stopped because I got a sharp kick. It was hard to straighten morning. My back was lame and sore. I was bothered with dizzy spells, too. Doan's Pills stopped the backache and relieved me of the trouble."

Pleas For Retaining of Identity of Road

In Lawrence township was this old "river road." The work was done by the pioneer settlers along the river from Clearfield to Lick Run, where the Ooshen line connects.

Lawrence township was very large before it was divided and sparsely settled south and west of Clearfield, making it burdensome on the people mentioned to keep their road in condition. Not alone by reason of the mud but because of the spring floods which filled the road from Moose Creek down to Wolf Run. When this occurred it was necessary to go and cut and pound the ice to pieces and roll it into the river in order to get the road open to Clearfield.

There was no money in the township treasury for that kind of work and the farmers and their sons would volunteer and meeting at Wolf Run take up their task as often as an ice flood occurred.

A start would be made by putting back the Wolf Run bridge, which was always crowded off its pier by the ice. The volunteers who performed this public duty time after time, some from Girard, Covington and Karthaus, were: William Mapes and sons, James Road and sons, Judge Samuel Clyde,

Matthew Road, David Miller, Wm. T. McCorkle, Alex. Road, Thompson Road, Joseph Jordan and sons, John Irwin, Henry Irwin and sons, James Irwin and sons, Henry Mead and sons.

Then, too, the following old-timers who all signed the petition and were instrumental in having the first mail route between Clearfield and Karthaus established over this road: Ellis Irwin, Lick Run; Ferdinand Hurkthal, Lewis Irwin, Alexander Murray, A. B. Shaw, then at Shawville; William Murray, M. LeConte, LeConte's Mills; Anderson Murray and sons, Girard; and Francis Coudriet, at Frenchville; Larry Flood, Keewaydin; Dr. Potter at Karthaus. Surely, the work of these old timers should not be forgotten by abandoning this road, associated as it is with the early history of this region.

Grandfather Samuel Fulton, one of the pioneer settlers and the first surveyor in the county, located along this road and raised a family of four sons, James, Moses, Washington and Thom. All of whom settled on farms near Wolf Run. These men were all citizens and not only looked after this road but took an active interest in church, school and public affairs of the township. They lived and died on the farms they carved out of the wilderness, one of their descendants, George Fulton, yet living on the old homestead farm, while T. N. Fulton resides in Clearfield. They know and can tell you something about the upkeep of this road, these people now want to abandon.

They helped upbuild the entire community, their deeds in the past deserve to be remembered by continuing and improving this road. We of the Wolf Run end of Lawrence have no objections to an equal division of the money for road purposes; this year. If Krebs, Goheen, David Irwin and the rest of the downriver section are satisfied also with but their share, let the good work go on. We all voted for the good road bond issue and will be ready and willing to do it again if we get our share of the road money for the purpose of improving this historic old pioneer road down the river.

Yours for fair play,
AN OLD TIMER.

LAWRENCE TOWNSHIP CITIZEN TYRONE YOUTH GETS 7 YEAR SENTENCE

Lafayette Thompson, a life-long resident of Lawrence township, passed away at his home near Glen Richey yesterday after an illness of several months duration, aged 70 years.

The deceased, who was a son of the late Josiah Thompson, spent all his life in the community where he died. He was generally respected by all who knew him and leaves many friends to mourn his being taken out of the world.

He is survived by his widow, three sons and one daughter, as follows: Cleaver and Jefferson, at home; Percy, of Cleveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Mae Rummings, of Clearfield. One brother, Roy Thompson, of Hollidaysburg, and four sisters, Mrs. Clara Draucker, of Philadelphia; Mrs. Mary Warren, of Osceola Mills; Mrs. Kate Welsh, of Palestine, Ohio, and Mrs. Emma Ruman, of Hollidaysburg, also survive.

Huntingdon, Pa., Feb. 6 (INS.)—Robert Lighth, 20, of Tyrone, Pa., today was sentenced to from seven to fourteen years imprisonment for the murder of his brother, Frank, 30, in a lumber camp near Alexandria on Dec. 30. Judge Bailey imposed the sentence after the youth had pleaded guilty to shooting his brother.

Wisdom From the Arab.
This is given as an Arabian proverb in "Life of Sir Richard Thorne" and runs: "Men are fools. He who knows not and knows not he knows not, he is a fool—him I hate. He who knows not and knows he knows not, he is simple—him I pity. He who knows and knows he knows, he is wise—him I love."
